

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE:

Jesse Holland, Nonpartisan for United States Senate Representing Nevada, Announces Candidacy

Elko, Nevada, USA – September 26, 2009 – Free from a party affiliation and party politics, Jesse Holland offers a voice for Nevadans that too long has fallen on deaf ears in the United States Senate.

Jesse Holland is running as a Nonpartisan candidate for United States Senate, classified as an Independent candidate by Nevada State law, on the 2010 ballot. Jesse Holland is committed to foundational principles that will result in more unity and soundness, not only for Nevada, but for the United States of America. He affirms, he offers “foundational principles that are not a set of wavering philosophies hidden behind closed doors. His affiliation is the people. His ties are with the people. His loyalty is to serve the best interests of the people of Nevada.”

“To serve the best interests of Nevada, a representative must listen to those who have entrusted their hopes with that representative,” states Mr. Holland. Headlines continue to clamor dissatisfaction that Americans feel toward the present government and party politics. This election might bring forward many candidates speaking against current political affairs. Jesse Holland encourages voters to investigate all candidates, decipher the truth behind all candidates’ words and exercise their freedom by voting.

Jesse Holland seeks your vote in 2010 and is confident that voters will find renewed assurance in government representation with him. More about this candidate and the solid principles he holds to, can be found online at his campaign website.
